

TOYS

Toys and children go hand in hand. When you think of one, you think of the other. Toys have been around since recorded time. Dolls, marbles, and hoop-and-stick games seem to be the toys found in every civilization. Toys have always helped children understand and learn about their world. As the world changes, so have the toys. Think about the toys you have now and the world you live in. Now, when you look at a toy from the past, think about the kids who would have played with it and what their world might have looked like.