

DESCRIPTION AND SUGGESTED USES

This is a long-stemmed, pewter pipe with a capped bowl. A pewter facsimile of a beaver tops the bowl. Imprinted on the stem is the insignia of the Hudson's Bay Company which dominated the North American Fur Trade from the 17th century through the 19th century. Circa: 1760. Artifact courtesy Glorieta Private Collection.

SUGGESTED USES

This is an excellent artifact to use with the discussion of colonial trade, the fur trade and settlement of the North American continent. Use in combination with the following artifacts to form a lesson that generates discussion:

1. Beaver Hat Form
2. Beaver Hat
3. Brass Kettle (Native American)
4. Brass Kettle (Hudson's Bay Company)
